Course Information

Abbreviations: (h)= distributed in class; Bkt= the course Booklet; f.m=editor’s prefaces, etc.

Papers: Specific assignments will be given well in advance; good writing and the ability to argue a case and use the text are crucial; secondary source reading not required but must be cited in full if used; papers must be typed, double-space with standard margins and page numbers; use a cover page with your name but no folders or plastic covers; stapled top left. For the first paper, see the Booklet. Consult the Booklet as well for guidance on writing about literary texts and for samples of graded papers. I can’t look at first drafts of your papers in advance. I may, for specific reasons, ask for a paper to revised.

Prospectus: More detailed information as we go along, but essentially a 2-page proposal for the final paper.

Final Paper: a 10-12 page paper on Jude the Obscure that sets the novel in the context of the work of either Matthew Arnold or Walter Pater. This paper must be turned in by May 10. If your schedule makes this date a problem, you can turn the paper in before May 10. Note that you must read Jude the Obscure by April 2, when the Prospectus is due.

Mid-Term Exam: A series of short essay questions on the reading to date will be distributed on March 5. You must turn in your typed exam by 5pm, March 12.

Make-Ups: Only for exceptional cause and only by oral exam

Deadlines: on papers you lose 1/2 grade for each class late up to 3; then not accepted

Missed Classes: attendance not required; provision for non-attendees not offered.

Lateness: please avoid; it's really disruptive

Research Resources: a great deal of material and many links relating to the Victorian period and to all of our authors can be found by at the following site:
